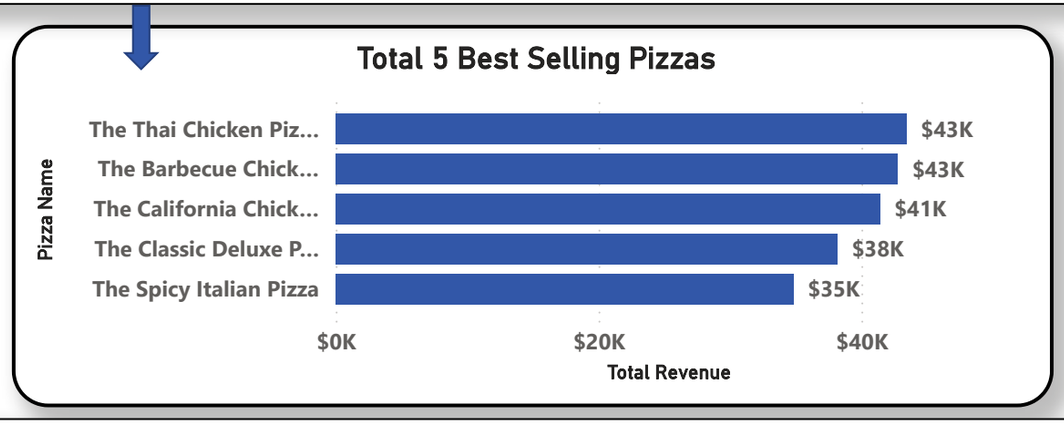
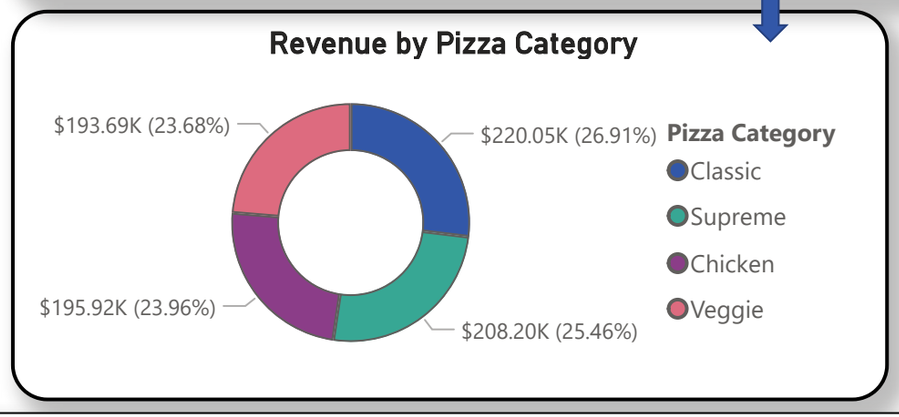
Revenue peaked in July ($72.56K) and hit its lowest in October ($64.03K) — a 12% seasonal swing. The business shows consistent mid-year strength with a notable dip entering Q4.

Chicken dominates the top 5 — Thai Chicken and BBQ Chicken are almost tied at $43K each. 3 of the top 5 pizzas are Chicken-based, suggesting high customer preference for this category despite it ranking 3rd overall.



All 4 pizza categories contribute almost equally to revenue — Classic leads at 26.91% ($220K) while Supreme trails slightly at 23.68% ($193K). This balanced portfolio reduces dependency risk on any single category.



Business Recommendation: With revenue dipping to $64K in Sep–Oct, a seasonal discount or loyalty campaign in Q3 could smooth the revenue curve and target the 12% gap between peak and trough months.

Evening hours 17–19 collectively generate 6,750 orders — the second biggest demand window after lunch. A dinner combo promotion targeting these hours could directly lift avg order value above the current $38.31.

Lunch (12–1pm) drives the highest demand with 4,980 combined orders — nearly 24% of all daily orders happen in just 2 hours. Staffing and inventory should be front-loaded for this window.

Large size pizzas generate $375.32K — 45.9% of total revenue — making it the single most important size to stock. Notably, Chicken pizzas have zero XL/XXL sales, meaning upsell opportunity exists in that category.

Pizza Category	L	M	S	XL	XXL	Total
Chicken	$102.34K	$65.22K	$28.36K			$195.92K
Classic	$74.52K	$60.58K	$69.87K	$14.08K	$1.01K	$220.05K
Supreme	$94.26K	$66.48K	$47.46K			$208.20K
Veggie	$104.20K	$57.10K	$32.39K			$193.69K

Operations Recommendation: Given lunch accounts for ~24% of daily orders in 2 hours, consider a pre-order or express menu option for the 12–1pm slot to reduce wait time and increase order throughput.
